

mental health
in creative
industries

mental health
in creative
industries

mental health
in creative
industries

Mental health includes our physical, emotional and psychological wellbeing.

Our mental health can greatly affect our creativity and how we see the world around us.

To anyone currently struggling with their mental health, consider indulging in your creative urges.

Designing can become a refuge during difficult times.

Sources

The big mental health report, (2024), Mind.

Long-standing health crisis in creative industries linked to passion driven work research finds, (2025), Creatives Unite.

Cover

Manipulation of Shocking Wave
by Brodie Kaman

DID

Creative industries typically have long work hours and precarious contracts

Working in media (creativity & storytelling)

traps people in cycles of self-sacrifice

?

1 in 4 in England will experience a mental health problem at some point each year

YOU

1 in 5 children and young people in England have a mental health problem

Wide issues in journalism, advertising, film and content creation lead to anxiety and burnout

KNOW

1 in 8 young people aged 17-19 in England (2024), have an eating disorder or difficulty

Did

YOU

YOU

YOU

I attended the counselling

last year and

am attending

again this year,
after a second referral

STUDENT

Mental health has affected
my ~~attendance~~ and commitment to work,
I have difficulty
completing work
on time

I found the 5 4 3 2 1 method
very helpful

I've definitely struggled
with depression

during
panic attacks and anxiety

I've experienced
severe anxiety,
depressive episodes
and
found it difficult
to attend classes

VOICES*

It was a
nerve-racking time
trying to meet
new people
and also learn
a completely
new subject

*From the School of Arts and Communication Design

'I am, we are ... different by design' is an annual student-led zine published by the Department of Typography & Graphic Communication at the University of Reading. This year, the zine was curated, collated and designed by Eleanor Denton, Aurelien Flatman, Grace Johnson, and Jess Scrivener.

This year's edition focuses on four themes: mental health, menstrual health, community & inclusion, and student finances. These were the most commonly raised issues that students in the School of Arts and Communication Design highlighted to us in a survey.

In the University's 100th year, we have brought together and presented under-represented student voices from across the School.

Design by Eleanor Denton

UoR Mental Health
& Wellbeing

Bectu Creative
Work Union

NABS Creative
Career Support